Our Christmas Message

The events of September 11th 2001, left us all gasping. The incredible sight of two enormous buildings crumbling to the ground, humans disappearing into thin air, a long list of missing persons, devastated families mourning, and an economy reeling in recession, caused us all great grief. Our sadness is very burdensome. But now comes Christmas. The Yuletide season is a reminder of God's power of rebirth and reclamation. God is omnipotent, and by asking for God's grace and blessings, we will be renewed.

The devastation left no nation or people unaffected. Vincentians at home and abroad felt the weight of this tragedy. Two Vincentians (as of this writing) were lost in the destruction. Mr. Andre Cox of New Montrose and Mr. Cosmos Crozier of Georgetown, both missing and presumed dead. Our prayers and sympathy go out to their families.

Several Vincentians who worked at the Word Trade Center and in surrounding buildings escaped being counted as missing, simply by the stroke of luck. God was on their side. A more powerful force than luck. There are stories of Vincentian nationals whose escape had to be ordained by God. One was scheduled to begin work at a later time than normal; he missed death by a few hours. Another was delayed because of a sick child; she thinks of that child's illness as a "God-send." One was walking towards the first building when the aircraft struck. He was so close to the point of impact that he could see death.

Then another used as much speed as humanly possible to run away from the falling building. The stories are endless.

These events have reminded us that we cannot take anything for granted. Let us appreciate the gifts of time, love and family. We know their importance. This Yuletide season, let us reach out in love and kindness and embrace the warmth and love of others. Peace, Love, and Happiness.

A Tribute to Former Ambassador Kingsley C.A. Layne, C.M.G.

His Excellency Kingsley C.A. Layne was St. Vincent and the Grenadines' first resident ambassador to the United States of America. He established the Embassy in Washington, D.C., in 1990, and presented credentials to President George Bush Sr. on February 19, 1991. Ambassador Layne was also Permanent Representative to the Organization of American States (OAS), beginning September 1990. He was concurrently Permanent Representative to the United Nations from 1990 to 1994. In his capacity as Chairman of the Latin American and Caribbean Group of countries at the United Nations (GRULAC) in June 1993, Ambassador Layne's leadership was responsible for the election of the first national of a Caribbean Community (CARICOM) country as Chairman of the UN General Assembly. The Region's candidate, Guyana, was elected President, of the 48th Session (1993-1994), unopposed. On a previous occasion, the Caribbean candidature faltered because of uncertainty in the group. At the OAS he co-chaired the Joint Working Group charged with the merging of two precursor councils into the Inter-American Council for Integral Development (CIDI). This new entity is responsible for the hemispheric organization's co-operation programmes. Ambassador Layne was elected the first Chairman of its Permanent Executive Committee (CEPCIDI), by acclamation, in June 1996, at the Council's inaugural meeting in Panama City, Panama. Hemispheric ministers lauded the

Caribbean Elections

✘ St. LUCIA – Dec 3rd 2001

The St. Lucia Labour Party led by Prime Minister, Dr Kenny Anthony swept into its second term in power, after general election was held on December 3rd. Although elections took place six month earlier than the constitutional requirement, the party, whose campaign slogan was "By Far The Best" won 14 of the 17 seats. The other 3 seats went to the main Opposition United Workers Party headed by Dr. Morella Joseph.

✘ TRINIDAD & TOBAGO - Dec 10th 2001

"Dead Heat", the heading shouted from the pages of newspapers around the Caribbean. This is the result of the recent elections, contested by five political parties. The Unity National Congress (UNC) headed by the current Prime Minister, Basdeo Panday won 18 seats and the People's National Movement (PNM), headed by the former Prime Minister, Patrick Manning, also won 18 seats. A third party, Organization for National Reconstruction lost its only seat in Tobago. Although this tie is referred to as a 'Constitutional crisis,' the Constitution of Trinidad and Tobago will guide the next course of events.

Ambassador's stewardship in the creation of CIDI. The establishment of the Inter-American Council for Integral Development is widely regarded as one of the most important institutional innovations in the 50 years of the Organization's existence, as presently constituted.

Ambassador Layne was the motivating force in the formation of COSAGO; the Council of St. Vincent and the Grenadines Organizations U.S.A. Inc. COSAGO is the national umbrella organization for all Vincentian associations in the U.S. He was selected as one of the Council's two honourees at the 21st anniversary of SVG's Independence in October, 2000. The Ambassador was also instrumental in the establishment of the National Coalition on Caribbean Affairs (NCOCA), which brings together all Caribbean organizations in the U.S. He was honoured for his contributions to the Caribbean community at the official launching of NCOCA on February 7, 1997, at OAS headquarters in Washington. He was named NCOCA's Honorary Chairman on April 17, 1999, by the Organization's Board of Directors. The Ambassador worked with members of the Caribbean Community in establishing the Association of Caribbean/American Elected Officials and Leaders (ACAL), which goals are, inter alia, the promotion and preservation of a favourable climate between the U.S. and the Caribbean Community. The Vincentian diplomat was Dean of Caribbean, OAS and Western hemisphere Ambassadors in Washington, and the 4th ranking Ambassador accredited to the United States when he demitted office. He was made a Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George (C.M.G) by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II in the 1998 Birthday Honours. He was honoured for outstanding public and diplomatic service to St. Vincent and the Grenadines. Ambassador Layne was decorated with the insignia of the Order by Her Majesty at an Investiture in Buckingham Palace on October 27, 1998.

On Sunday January 17, 1999 Ambassador Layne received the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Legacy Award for International Service. Other recipients were the Reverend Jesse L. Jackson and Senator Robert Dole. The King Legacy Awards are presented annually by the International Salute Committee to individuals who have made significant contributions in academia, industry, national and international affairs. The Award is one of the most prestigious in the United States presented in memory of the great civil rights leader. Ambassador Layne was unanimously elected Chairman of the Special Committee on Civil Society Participation in OAS Activities, by the Permanent Council, on November 22, 2000. Increased involvement of civil society in national and multilateral affairs is an area of major political emphasis for the nations of the hemisphere, and the world.
